

NYU Medical Center Faculty Bibliography

---

About the Faculty Bibliography: The Faculty Bibliography is a service of the Ehrman Digital Library. The purpose of the Bibliography is to gather citations to publications of NYU School of Medicine faculty into a single easy to use database.

Citations to faculty publications are collected from online databases, most prominently MEDLINE and MEDCat (the Library's online catalog). Citations also come from Biological Abstracts, EMBASE, Web of Science, and PsycInfo. In addition the Bibliography contains citations to published works that does not appear in online databases, but which have been identified by faculty themselves and verified by the Library. At present there are over 41,600 citations in the database.

The Faculty Bibliography can be searched by a variety of indexes, including faculty name, department, article and journal title, phrases in article abstracts, and MeSH (Medical Subject Headings). Besides providing a convenient overview of faculty publications, the Bibliography is the third component of the School of Medicine's online faculty research tracking system, which includes two other mutually supporting online databases:

- The Faculty Resource Catalog. The FRC is a structured, controlled vocabulary database of basic faculty information and research interests, based on analysis of actual published work, grants and research. The FRC is the School of Medicine's gateway to national research databases such as the Community of Science. The FRC can be searched at: <http://medcat.med.nyu.edu:81>.
- The Faculty Biosketch pages. The Biosketch pages are a place for faculty to present their CV and to describe their research interests in their own words. For more information, read How to contribute to the Medical Center's WWW Project. The Biosketch pages can be searched at: <http://www.med.nyu.edu/people>.

The Faculty Bibliography is a work in progress. The Library is constantly adding new and previously untracked citations to the Bibliography. We encourage all faculty to look themselves up and make sure their publishing record is fully and accurately represented.

To ask questions about the Faculty Bibliography please send email to facbib@library.med.nyu.edu. To add or correct data in the Bibliography, use MyInfo at <http://myinfo.med.nyu.edu>.