Web of Knowledge

featuring Pokemon

Dorice Vieira

Ehrman Medical Library

10/24/02
Goals of this Session

• To provide an overview the key resources in ISI’s Web of Knowledge
  – The Citation Indexes
  – Advanced Searching
  – SFX and Full-text Links
  – Journal Citation Reports
  – ISI Highly Cited
ISI’s Web of Knowledge

- Produced by the Institute for Scientific Information
- Integrated “knowledge” resource
  - Links between Web of Science, JCR, full-text resources and more!
- Find out who is doing the most significant research
- Find out who is citing the most significant research
Who or what is/are Pokemon?
ISI Web of Science: Citation Indexes

search current and retrospective multidisciplinary information from approximately 8,500 of the most prestigious, high impact research journals in the world

• Science Citation Index
  – 1945 to Present

• Social Sciences Citation Index
  – 1956 to Present

• Arts & Humanities Index
  – 1975 to Present
Pokemon

• How much has been written on Pokemon?
  – ISI Science Citation Index

• How much has been written on Pokemon and seizures?
  – Advanced Searching

• Can you retrieve articles?
  – SFX and Full-text
Who’s Citing Who?

• Cited Reference Searching
  – Follow trends in research
  – Show the impact or your work
• Who has cited the instructor?
  – Watch out for name spelling
Who’s Who in Research?

• Faculty at the NYU School of Medicine are among the top researchers in the world – Can you find who they are and a list of their accomplishments?
Where should you publish?

• Do you have a good publishing track records?
  – Impact factors might be for you

• Are you new to the realm of publishing?
  – Highest number of articles published might be for you
Bibliographic Management

• Saves search history
  – Saves on your hard drive not a server

• Exports directly to EndNote
  – You select the fields
  – Export
  – Open MS Word and start writing
Don’t Forget to Logout!
Or Else!
Current Contents

• Due to lack of use, we will no longer receive this database as of December 1, 2002